Gospel Message

My dear brothers and sisters in Christ,

Imagine a little boy walking home with his father after sunset. The road is dark, and the boy is frightened. His father carries a flashlight, but its light reaches only a few steps ahead. The boy asks, "Dad, why can't we see the whole road?" His father answers, "We don't need to see the whole road. We need enough light for the next step. Stay close to me."

Our lives can feel like that dark road. We worry about our children, our health, our finances, and our future. We want to know how everything will turn out. Today's Gospel reminds us that we can keep walking when we stay close to Jesus.

The Gospel begins with a deeply human moment. Jesus is troubled as he faces his approaching suffering and death. Think about that: Jesus himself experiences anguish. Therefore, feeling afraid does not mean that our faith is weak. A parent worrying about a child, a person waiting for medical results, or someone grieving a loved one can bring that pain honestly to God. We do not have to pretend that everything is fine. We can pray, "Lord, I am frightened. I am tired. Please help me."

Yet Jesus does something more. In his distress, he turns toward the Father and prays that the Father's name may be glorified. His suffering is real, but he remains faithful to his mission. This gives us a beautiful lesson: faith means trusting God even when we do not understand the road ahead. Sometimes our prayer is, "Lord, take this difficulty away." We can also pray, "Lord, help me face this difficulty with patience, courage, and love."

For parents, that may mean continuing to guide a child who does not listen. For married couples, it may mean choosing a calm conversation when they feel hurt. For someone carrying grief, it may mean accepting help and taking one small step forward.

Jesus then speaks of being lifted up and drawing people to himself. He is speaking about the cross. From the cross, Jesus reaches out to a wounded world. His arms are open to the sinner seeking forgiveness, the lonely person longing for love, and the family struggling to find peace.

When we look at the crucifix, we see how deeply we are loved. We see a Savior who enters our suffering and opens a path through it. Perhaps someone here is carrying a burden that nobody else knows about. Bring it to Jesus. You do not need perfect words. Simply say, "Jesus, stay with me. Help me carry this." Finally, Jesus urges us to walk while we have the light and to become children of light. That invitation calls for a response today. We should not keep postponing the good we can do.

If someone needs our forgiveness, let us begin the conversation. If our family prayer has stopped, let us start again. If someone is lonely, let us call them. If we have hurt someone, let us apologize. Our homes become brighter through these small choices. A kind word, a patient response, and a few minutes of prayer can bring Christ's light into an ordinary day. The boy in our opening story could not see the whole road. But he could take the next step because his father was beside him. Today, let us take our next step with Jesus.

Lord Jesus, when our hearts are troubled, strengthen our trust. When our families struggle, teach us to love. Lead us by your light, and help us bring that light to others. Amen.
